Of all the medical equipment I have purchased, I have never felt the need to get trained on the equipment myself. That is, until we decided to purchase the ONDAMED® for use in my practice. "Dr. Buttar, you have a problem with your prostate!" That is not something that any man wants to hear, especially, if you don't have any symptoms of any problems with your prostate. I looked back at the nurse practitioner who was training my nurse and I, and in a very protective tone, I proceeded to defend my prostate. "I don't have any problems with my prostate!" The nurse practitioner didn't seem to hear me and continued with her training. A few minutes later, while checking Nina, my nurse who had accompanied my fiancée and me for the training on the ONDAMED®, the nurse practitioner again, in a matter of fact tone stated, "Nina, you have a problem with your lungs!" Nina turned to me, and mumbled under her breath while rolling her eyes, "I don't have any damn problems with my lungs!" What the heck were we doing here spending all this money on a box with a few green LCD numbers displayed, which was telling us we had all these medical problems which we obviously did not have. Should I have gone with my second instinct and bought the truck I needed for my farm instead of this "box" with the pretty green lights? Hell, it didn't even come with automatic windows.

Three days later, I started having a pressure sensation upon voiding, along with polyuria and hesitancy on initiating a urinary stream. I had developed prostatitis. The next day, my nurse developed a serious cough with fever. I listened to her lungs and she had severe coarse breath sounds with rhonchi in her right lung fields. She had pneumonia. Did that damn machine cause these problems? That was the first thought that went through my mind. But obviously, it had not. This was our first real introduction to the incredible power of the machine we refer to as the ONDAMED®. We played with it for the next 10 days or so, doing all the things that the nurse practitioner had told us NOT to do. For instance, we identified seven microorganisms on my initial treatment, five of which were parasites. I was told NOT to treat more than two microorganisms at a time. So naturally, I treated all seven at one setting. That evening, as most people experience after the first few sessions, I was exhausted, but I did not experience all the negative things that I had been warned about. Next morning was great, until about 9:30 am. Then slowly, a wave of nausea swept over me, followed by discomfort in my abdomen, followed by severe cramping and pain associated with recurrent bowel movements which lasted until 11:00 pm that evening, over 13 hours after the symptoms had started. Next day, it started again and although not as intense, lasted until about 7:00 pm. The machine is even more powerful than the company has stated.

Today, we do approximately 150 sessions every month, with each treatment session about 45 minutes long. 15 minutes are spent on determining which frequencies would be the most beneficial for the patient, documentation on the chart and charging the water with frequencies for patients. The other 30 minutes are spent on actual treatments. We used ONDAMED® with a number of different medical conditions and with all our difficult to diagnose patients. We have now even developed a few of our own unique treatment protocols using the ONDAMED®.

In Autism and pervasive developmental delays, we use ONDAMED® along with the transdermal DMPS and Glutathione that we developed originally to treat my own son who lost his ability to speak from the age of 15 months until 42 months of age. We have used the ONDAMED® in approximately half of the 31 children that we have treated with Autism. The reason it has only been used in half the patients is because I tell all patients or parents of patients that they should try ONDAMED® 2 times per week for at least 3 weeks before deciding if it has benefited them or not. If the patient feels like they have not gotten any benefit from the ONDAMED®, I stop treatment with the ONDAMED®. Of all my patients using the ONDAMED®, less than 15% have stopped because they were not able to perceive any benefit. It is important to note that these patients may still have benefited but stopped only because they did not perceive an improvement. 85% of the patients in our office have been able to perceive a benefit from their treatments with ONDAMED®.

Often, patients may feel worse initially due to detoxification effects, also referred to as a healing crisis or Hertzheimer's reaction and some of those may choose not to continue with their treatments. Other patients have only had 2 or 3 treatments because that is all they needed in order to have total resolution of their problem. These types of rapid results are usually seen with conditions associated with pain. Some results are so dramatic they are difficult to believe, while others are far more subtle. But the jury is in, and the ONDAMED® is definitely a keeper.

The ONDAMED® is not a modality that should be relied on as monotherapy, although sometimes it works well without any other intervention. However, if used along with other treatments, the ONDAMED® is highly effective. Currently, we are establishing a national network of medical doctors (MD's and DO's) that will be trained in multiple treatment modalities including intra venous and intra muscular treatments as well as sound principles of nutritional medicine that will adhere to certain principals felt to be vital in order to gain a positive outcome in patients suffering from chronic disease. These physicians will represent the select few that will have access to a number of rare treatment modalities ranging from some unique transdermals utilizing the same technology used to create Trans-D Tropin®, to advanced techniques such as the AARSOV (autogenous antigen receptor specific oncogenic vaccine) used in the treatment of cancer. This network will be based on a group of physicians that have been selected to participate and each physician that participates will be selected based on review of an application process. Each physician will be trained in specific treatment modalities and will have patients diverted to them from TV shows that will be on PBS and Discovery channel, starting in the spring of 2004 as well as from an upcoming video series called, "Know Your Medical Options". This medical series will be the feature of an international infomercial anticipated to be released by the summer of 2004. Each physician that becomes part of the network will be able to use the designation of being a "Center for Advanced Medicine and Clinical Research". The ONDAMED® is such an important piece of equipment that all physicians in this network will be asked to purchase one and will undergo specialized training on how to use the ONDAMED® in conjunction with some of the other special treatment modalities to attain the best possible clinical outcome.

The following represents much of the information we relay to our patients in the consent form we require to be signed prior to initiating ONDAMED® sessions. ONDAMED® (which literally means "medical wave" in German), is an electromagnetic impulse frequency biofeedback device, registered with the FDA and classified as a biofeedback class II medical device. This registration does not allow the device to be used to diagnose or treat any disease, and therefore its use is not to diagnose or treat any disease. This device allows the physician to detect imbalances in the patient's body by using autonomic pulse biofeedback method. These imbalances in the biological system may often be related to the complaints and/or pains being expressed by the patient, or they may be present but yet unknown to the patient at the time of the session. Once the imbalance is discovered, the provider may choose one of the ONDAMED®'s 156 pre-set programs, individual frequencies, or microorganism specific frequencies. These programs provide gentle, non-threatening, low level frequencies that are not harmful but which may positively affect aspects of human physiology associated with human disease. All systems including biological systems resonate at very specific frequencies. The human body signals exactly what, where, and how it requires a signal. The ONDAMED® is able to identify certain isolated frequencies resonating within the biological system that are not optimum for the system. This identification process is based upon the autonomic pulse biofeedback method.

The ONDAMED® is a proven therapeutic whole body regulation system which has been used in Germany for over 10 years. It works with electromagnetic impulse frequencies, which initiate self-regulating reactions in the body through induction. The ONDAMED® System aims at breaking through the normality of the complaint and to activate the internal regulating centers through biofeedback impulse frequencies. The methodology is successful by dual applications: the action of the electromagnetic impulses and their combination of frequencies, and the ability to individually adjust all of the physical quantities by means of pulse biofeedback. The pulse biofeedback is not only the best way of stabilizing a patient on a specific program but also provides immediate control of how the patient reacts to the individual frequencies itself.

The ONDAMED® System often proves successful where no further biochemical means is able to prove effective. In practice, the procedure usually is as follows: different impulse frequencies are applied to the patient by means of a neck applicator. The neck region presents the most important point of connection to the upper and lower control centers of the patient. The provider monitors the patient's pulse and simultaneously scans the patient's body from head to toe and front to back. The pulse will indicate where the patient may have blocked various areas, which are stabilized at the time of detection.

The ONDAMED® is currently being evaluated by mainstream medicine as a possible adjunct to traditional health care treatment modalities. As with many natural healing modalities, the patient may experience an initial increase in symptoms, or what is known as a "healing crises" (Hertzheimer's Reaction). This may last up to three or four days and may be similar to what is experienced when an individual becomes ill with a cold or the flu. These symptoms of "detoxification" may start with a headache, body-ache, occasional fever with perspiration and may progress to nausea and/or diarrhea. Or the symptoms may only manifest as feeling tired and sluggish. These experiences are recognized by physicians in natural healing as the initiation of the healing process.
