Water... the essence of life

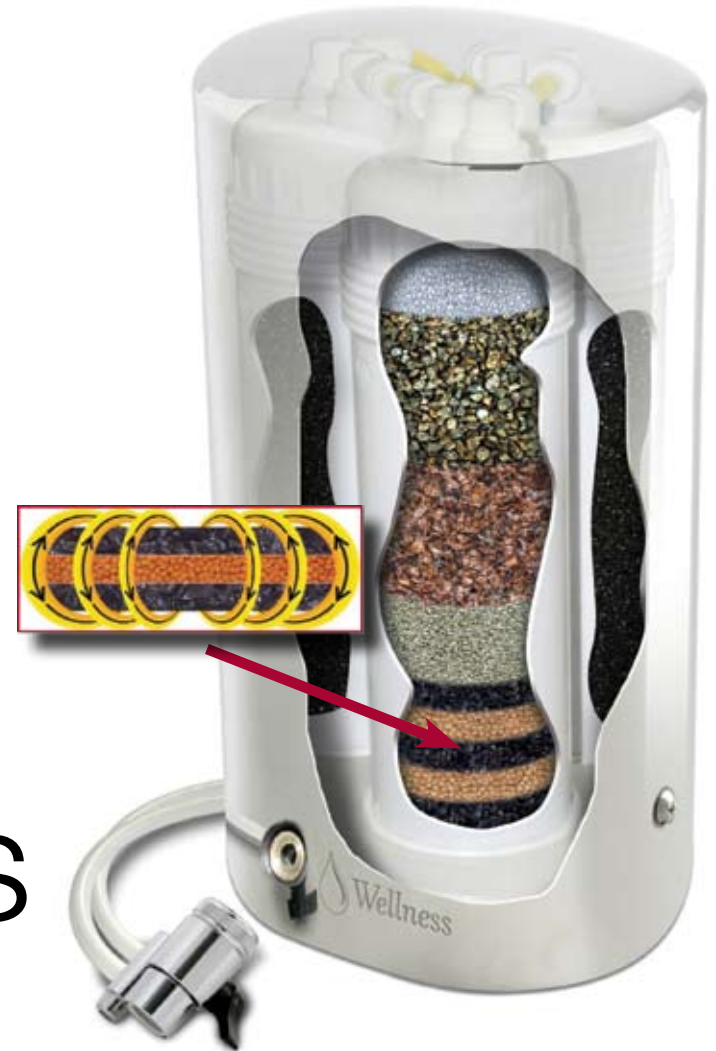

The Wellness Filter® and its enhanced water technology was first introduced by company founder and health scientist, Haru Naito, over 25 years ago. This system is acclaimed for its ability to purify and to induce into water certain unique properties that improve or enhance water's already vital role in life. Specifically, the water is enhanced to have the following properties.

- ◆ Increased rates of hydration to make it more readily absorbable by humans, animals and plants
- ◆ Reduced ions for a greatly improved and natural antioxidant effect
- ◆ Higher solubility, allowing water to transmit greater quantities of nutrients
- ◆ Additional trace minerals that enhance cellular and biological function and stabilize pH
- ◆ Natural resistance to the growth of harmful bacteria and fungi

Wellness

Healthier water for you to enjoy at home

The Wellness Filter® technology utilizes a patented magnetic enhancement stage that increases the rate at which water will move through membranes such as our cells, which results in higher rates of hydration and cellular detoxification. Many experts believe that increased cellular hydration and waste removal is the ultimate answer to improved health and anti-aging. This process also temporarily improves solubility and ionic stability of the water, which allows a more thorough absorption of dissolved nutrients and the reduction of scaling with hard water.

The Wellness Process

Unlike traditional water filters, the Wellness process has two distinctly different systems — a purification system and an enhancement system. They work together to produce clean and refreshing water in much the same way as the Earth does by sifting through multiple layers of natural, purifying materials. In the Wellness home and shower systems, multiple layers of natural media are arranged in such a way that contaminants can be trapped and then periodically back-washed out of the system, extending filter life without worry or maintenance.

This Wellness process produces clean water that is so natural and nourishing for the body that many call it... the Best Source of Water on Earth®. The process is so exceptional that over 100 Japanese hospitals, many operated by the Japanese Ministry of Health, use it and as a natural result, many physicians recommend it for their patients. Now you can enjoy this same top quality of water throughout your home.

chlorine and chloramine and give it the longest certified life of any shower filter on the market. The whole house system also employs SPG sand (an engineered volcanic sand so efficient that it is used in Japan to purify blood for dialysis patients). These layers treat a broad spectrum of harmful contaminants and also polish the water for optimum taste.

Enhancement

After completing purification, water proceeds through multiple layers of enhancement media. Several of these layers are comprised of unique far infrared ceramics sandwiched in between two layers of magnetite and ceramic magnets. The far infrared ceramic contains Tenko-seki™, a rare stone which imparts reduced ions into the water.

Reduced ions are known to neutralize free radicals on and in the body. Free radicals are believed to be a primary cause of aging and disease.

stone, another rare Japanese mineral known for its bacteria-static and fungi-static properties. As the water exits the Wellness Filter it is given one final stage of treatment with highly polished natural quartz, a material that has been shown to improve the hydration of water.

Water leaves The Wellness Filter® enhanced with rare properties found only in the world's most renowned natural springs.

Purification

Wellness Filter products employ a variety of specialized media to reduce harmful contaminants. The configuration and selection of these media depend on the specific product but include the finest coconut shell-derived granulated activated carbon as well as proprietary carbon block materials to reduce chlorine, chloramine, VOCs, lead, mercury, THMs, cysts, and turbidity. The Wellness Shower utilizes a chamber of spinning KDF to reduce

The water also proceeds through a layer of Bakuhan® stone, a rare igneous rock that contains a combination of over two dozen minerals which are eluted into the water in trace levels. It was shown that these trace minerals assist numerous bodily functions and this prompted the Japanese Ministry of Health to distinguish and certify Bakuhan as the first and only natural stone to be classified a medicinal mineral. The water is then treated by a layer of Taicho®

The Wellness Kitchen & Shower

Wellness' filtration and enhancement technology started a water revolution in Japan in the early 1980s. Hundreds of thousands of satisfied users and health care professionals have helped spread the word of this amazing water filtration and enhancement system.

The Wellness Kitchen S-III™ Features

The Wellness Kitchen S-III is designed to attach to most common faucets as a counter-top installation. A quick-fit connector makes this an easy 3-minute installation — no plumbing required. The S-III system is designed for home or professional use and with an optional conversion kit enables installation under the sink or wherever access to a suitable municipal water source is available. As with all Wellness filters, the S-III incorporates the same natural purification and enhancement technology of Wellness products installed in hospitals, schools, spas, offices and over half a million homes world-wide.

The S-III is designed to facilitate cartridge upgrades as municipal water conditions change, as well as to allow easy cartridge replacement. The carbon cartridges contain organic coconut along with five other carbon types. These filters are placed before and after the permanent volcanic enhancement media layers, and reduce chlorine, chloramines, chlorinated hydro-carbons, trihalomethanes, pesticides, foreign tastes and odors to non-detectable levels for a safer, healthier water. An LCD display indicates current water flow rate and the total number of gallons and days remaining before a cartridge change.

Give yourself a renewing experience

The Wellness system produces the most delicious and refreshing water you may ever experience. The super-hydrating and antioxidant properties of Wellness Filter® water improve upon water's already vital role in our health and Wellness. Give your body the edge it deserves.
